

Some insurance companies will not pay for services that they determine are not "reasonable and necessary". If your insurance company determines a particular service or item which you receive is not "reasonable and necessary" under their program standards, they will deny payment, and you will then become responsible for these charges.

The following list includes, but may not be limited to, possible non-covered items under current insurance standards:

Ace bandages
Slings
Tennis elbow pads
Fracture walker (Bledsoe boot)
Short air walker
Lace up ASO ankle brace
Wrist brace - cock up
Thumbkeepers splint
